Headmistress

Mrs. Cheryl Boughton

One year ago, as I sat down to write my message in the 2014-15 Samara, I don't think I fully grasped the impact that celebrating Elmwood's Centennial would have on our school community. Looking back over the incredible year we have had, I am so proud of what we have done together. It has been one for the record books, and will be remembered well into Elmwood's second century.

The pages of this Samara are more than just a record of the year's events and activities. They are a piece of history. They hold the stories of each of the members of our community - the special people who were part of this special year. 100 years from now, people will turn the pages of this book and read about us and wonder how different life at Elmwood was "back then," just as we have while learning about the School's history this year.

And as you flip through the pages yourself, you'll see great successes. You'll see spirit. You'll see community. And you'll see girls inspired to take on the next century! Thank you to each and every student, parent, alumna, staff and faculty member who has made this year so memorable.

Finally, thank you to our Samara editors, Sophie Barker and Sydney Greenley, their supervisors, Mrs. Bartlett and Dr. Conlon, and the whole Samara team for capturing the story of this year. I am sure that those girls reading this in 2116 will be incredibly impressed!

Mr. James Whitehouse

Deputy Head, Junior School

Putting together the Junior School Closing slideshow this year was a wonderful way to review a unique year at Elmwood. We had a memorable Centennial year together and it was quite a challenge to attempt to capture all of the magical moments we co-created into a 3.5 minute presentation. What stands out most impressively this year is how our youngest girls worked whole-heartedly to exemplify the learner profile by setting individual goals and achieving them. Whether those goals were to present in assembly, learn math facts, master cursive, or win a ribbon at a race. students in the Junior School were determined and self-reflective in the 2015-2016 year.

Deputy Head, Middle & Senior School

As I stood on the stage and gave my closing address during our final assembly, I was struck with a bittersweet mixture of sadness and joy- sorrow in saying goodbye to our amazing grads yet happiness in closing another remarkable year at Elmwood. Pondering happy memories, stellar academic successes and the wonderful relationships each of us has formed with one another, I was also filled with excitement at the thought of what all of you will achieve next year as well as for the challenges ahead that I know each of you will embrace. Looking back on this our Centennial Year fills me with pride, laughter and hope for the future. For this, I thank each and every one of you.

Ms. Christine Blackadar

Editors' Notes

"Great things in business are never done by one person. They're done by a team of people." In the spirit of this year's Samara, Steve Jobs was right.

Being the co-editor of the Centennial yearbook was quite a difficult task. We had to stay long hours after school, chase people for their write-ups, advertise the book, and much more. In addition, we faced and overcame multiple challenges, but it was so worth it! It's been incredible to see our book start off from 130 blank pages to a book full of colour and complete with life! I am so proud of each person who worked on this yearbook; we truly did an amazing job (so pat yourselves on the back!).

The Centennial yearbook is very special; it celebrates the past 100 years and is a milestone for Elmwood. We wanted to make this year's Samara timeless and something to look back on 50 years from now. We decided to highlight Centennial events, as we had the daunting task of capturing the one hundredth year.

I would like to thank everyone who helped make this book possible: Mrs. Bartlett, Dr. Conlon, Eric Saxton, our club members, but most importantly, each student. Elmwood students, you play a crucial role in creating Samara; you work hard to make it the best it can be. Whether you are working on the actual book as part of the team, advertising it, or even purchasing a copy, you are a significant element in this year's edition.

Finally, to the graduating Class of 2016: Congratulations! From everyone on the Samara team, we wish you the best of luck in your future endeavours and we hope that this book thoroughly represents your final year of high school.

Sophie Barker

Helen Keller once said: alone we can do so little; together we can do so much.

This is exactly the case with this year's edition of Samara; Sophie and I couldn't have done any of this without the amazing work of the people on our team. These people include: Mrs. Bartlett, Dr. Conlon, Eric Saxton, our fantastic club members and the seven people who showed up every single week (we love you <3), our parents and families for driving us to each other's houses and to school at 3:30 for yearbook when we were sick (this one is mostly about my parents in particular), every person who wrote a paragraph or answered a question that is incorporated in the book, all the incredible artists who allowed us to put their work in the book, and every single student and teacher of Elmwood who encouraged us to make the book the best it can be.

Being the editors for the Centennial yearbook was an extremely intimidating task, but with the help of the amazing people around us we were successful :) Thank you all so very much.

Sydney Greenley

Camp Elmwood

Camp Elmwood has become an integral part of the Elmwood experience over the last few years. Each year, regardless of the weather or the theme, the girls take the challenges and experiences head on with gusto. As teachers, we get to watch friendships blossom, teamwork grow and to see individuals step out of their comfort zones and try new things from water soccer to team swing. The polar bear dip has grown in numbers to 100 and each year the house regatta gets louder and louder as the competition for the house cup gets underway. For me, Camp

Elmwood is just a great way to give the students an opportunity to grow, develop and stretch themselves outside of the regular school week. I love this event and look forward to many more to come!

- Mr. Ivan Sambles

Centennial Weekend

The first weekend in October 2015 was a very special one in Elmwood School's history. All members of the Elmwood community - alumni and their families, current students and their families, present and past faculty and staff, neighbours and friends - were invited to join us to honour and celebrate the extraordinary past, present and future of our beloved school. It was a weekend full of celebrations, new and old traditions and catching up with old friends - and it was a weekend we won't soon forget.

Friday was Founder's Day, a celebration of the beginnings of the School. The day began with an opening ceremony where students, alumnae, faculty and staff came together to learn about Elmwood's history, blow out the candles on our beautiful birthday cake and be presented with commemorative pins. The afternoon was filled with visitors taking tours of the school, the official openings of our wonderful decades rooms, historical exhibit, "The Girls in Green" - a uniformed doll display, and "Between the Elm Trees," our collaborative art project. In the evening, we held a cocktail party for the launch of our updated history book.

Endeavour's All: The Elmwood Story, 1915-2015, written by Janet Uren '68.

Saturday was the most perfect day for our Birthday Bash! The day included a Family Fun Fair, with bouncy castles, a petting zoo, pumpkin painting and more. There was a special drama performance from Elmwood Theatre's Fair Cruelty, and the decades rooms and exhibits were again available for tours. The Elmwood Bistro provided a fantastic BBQ lunch and the afternoon concluded with sports competitions and an ice cream social.

Saturday evening we moved the party to the spectacular Grand Hall of the Canadian Museum of History, for our Founder's Dinner. It was a magical night of food, drink and conversation in honour of Elmwood's 100th anniversary. The evening culminated in a fascinating interview with our special guest, Margaret Atwood, facilitated by Catherine Clark '95.

On Sunday morning, as a fitting finale for our weekend of celebrations, members of the community gathered for a traditional favourite - Prayers - followed by a delicious brunch catered by the Elmwood Bistro. It was so nice to have one more opportunity to catch up with old friends and classmates, colleagues and students.

Thank you to everyone who attended, and special thanks to the members of our Centennial Committee who worked tirelessly on the planning of this memorable weekend.

Ms. Teresa Stirling

In September, the Grade 5's began their year with an amazing experience at the Bonnenfant Y-Camp. Everyone had a great time, despite all the rain, and we all came back with different memories. One of our favorite activities was the rock climbing. Just off one of the camp's paths are two tall walls, one a little more difficult than the other. We suited up, fastening helmets and harnesses. Our friends held us up - belaying us - in case anyone fell. It was a great challenge. We also enjoyed tackling a rope obstacle course and enjoying a mixed-activity playground, dangling above our friends' heads. We had an amazing aerial view of the Ottawa River. It was spectacular! We went on a woodland peaceful nature trek, learned survival skills including building shelters, participated in a trust walk.

Even the pancakes were delicious! We are fortunate to have had the opportunity to go on this fun and eventful camp trip, and we learned a lot, too.

Zafreen Abdullah and Genevieve Collum
Grade 5 students

This year, I had the honor of organizing Elmwood's annual Run for the Cure campaign. It's always been one of my favorite fundraisers. I love the idea of getting active for a cause, and breast cancer is an issue that impacts many women everywhere. Being a girls' school, this issue is unfortunately exceptionally relevant, as the statistics of diagnosis for women are tragically high. CIBC's Run for the Cure was born out of hope for a cure to this widespread disease, which is why Elmwood takes such pride in donating both time and money towards this organization. The week building up to the Sunday morning race was filled with excitement, as participants received their t-shirts, wore pink bracelets specially made by the Middle School Service Council, and collected all their change to donate in a tense House Competition. Then, early that cold Sunday morning, everyone arrived at school at 7 am to get their face painted and participate in spirit filled activities. After riding the buses to the run site, the Elmwood Eagles Team ran or walked 5 kilometers along with thousands of other participants. In the closing ceremonies, Elmwood received the award for Top Fundraising High School in the Ottawa region: a massive honor that has become a tradition for the school to strive towards for the past several years. Thank you to everyone who ran the event and helped out along the way. It was phenomenal, and all proceeds go towards furthering breast cancer research.

Scotland Trip

Edinburgh, Scotland is a city filled with history, culture, glamour and passion for the arts - a perfect destination for a theatre festival. Elmwood Theatre's company was fortunate to be able to partake in the international Edinburgh Festival Fringe and experience the thrill of performing in such a vibrant city. Starting with three days in England, the group of seventeen girls and two teachers visited beautiful landmarks throughout the United Kingdom, including Buckingham Palace, Shakespeare's Birthplace, Edinburgh Castle, Arthur's Seat, and the Trossachs. Not only did we see great landmarks - we were exposed to lots of theatre! We saw classics such as "Othello" and "Antigone", original pieces including "Butterfly" and "The Great Downhill Journey of Little Tommy", and plays performed by other international high schools which were staying with us at the University of Edinburgh. Part of what made the trip so special was our ability to interact with other teenagers who shared our passion for the arts, with whom we still remain friends. Those of us who went on the trip continue to relive our memories and draw inspiration from the shows we saw - we learned so much will forever remember our wonderful voyage!

Grade 6 Montreal

In June, my classmates and I had the wonderful opportunity to tour the museums and famous sites of Montreal. In Montreal, our first stop was Notre Dame, the famous basilica. From there, we visited the archeology museum, where we walked through the old walls, homes and even the sewers of buried Montreal. Because of the pouring rain, our Mont Royal trip was postponed to the next day. On day two, we finally saw the beautiful Mont Royal, then were off to the Pompeii exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts where we were taken back in time to the eruption of Mount Vesuvius. Then, at the modern furniture exhibit, we traveled to 2030. Another memorable moment was the Biodome. Our class got the chance to step into rainforest, arctic, maritime, and forest ecosystems. The humidity, temperature, plants and animals in each let us feel the differences of the habitats. Still, my favourite part of the trip was hanging out with my friends as we experienced the beauty of Montreal.

Madighan Ryan

Grade 7 Quebec City

In February, the Grade 7s made an extraordinary trip to magical Quebec City, exploring it inside and out! We went to Carnaval, the Glissades de la Terrasse, the Beauré Coast, Montmorency Falls, Sainte-Anne-de-Beauré, went tubing in Village Valcartier, and ate delicious maple taffy at the cabane à sucre, which was one of my highlights! We also went on a sightseeing tour of Quebec City, where we explored historical events, such as the Battle of the Plains of Abraham. We saw where it took place and learned more about the war. Following this, we went on a shopping trip in Old Quebec. I would like to thank Dr. Conlon, Mr. Gummesson, Mme Karahalios, and Ms. Senf for joining us on the trip.

Lilly Allen
Grade 7 Student

Grade 8 Toronto

Our Grade 8 Toronto trip was the highlight of our year. Toronto was not quite ready for the Grade 8 Elmwood girls to hit the town. We had the best view of the city when we went to the CN Tower, were mesmerized by the beautiful colours of the marine life at Ripley's Aquarium and were treated to a whimsical Broadway show, but most unforgettable were the moments we shared as friends. Oh, and who could forget the many silly hotel room shenanigans!

Phoenix Plessas-Azurduy

Grade 9 New York

In October, the Grade 9 class spent their annual trip in New York City. From sightseeing in Greenwich Village and SoHo to seeing a Broadway show, it's safe to say we experienced a variety of cultures, and were given many educational opportunities in this captivating city. We also visited other significant landmarks, such as the 9/11 memorial site, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Central Park, and Wall streets. Special thanks to Mr. Sambles, Ms. Josselyn, Mr. Martin and Mrs. Fraser, who embarked on this exciting trip with us.

Tara Rida
Grade 9 Student

Battlefields of Europe

The 10-12 trip to Europe was one of the best experiences we've ever had. We toured around Europe to learn all about Canada during the World Wars, and did lots of sightseeing and shopping along the way. We visited pivotal places from history, such as Vimy Ridge, Juno Beach, and Flanders Fields. We bonded as a group along the way, making new friends from Elmwood and from other schools in Ontario. The Europe trip is a memory all of us will always keep in our hearts.

Shannon Howarth

ME to WE Ecuador

ME to WE is an innovative social enterprise working hand in hand with Free the Children. On a ME to WE trip, you volunteer alongside community members on real development projects as part of an award winning, holistic and sustainable development model, Adopt a Village. These excursions are about hands-on building projects, cultural immersion and genuine interaction - they have an impact on both you and the community you visit for years to come. On this year's ME to WE trip, sixteen members of the Elmwood community, including parents, faculty and students from Grades 6, 7 and 9, visited Ecuador. The development project that we worked on was helping to build a residence for physicians who work in the local clinic. This involved digging trenches, bending rebar, as well as the exhausting filling and carrying of sandbags, which, of course, featured a "fire-line" up the hill to the build site. During our "down time", we went on jungle hikes, lost at soccer to local school children, and visited a cocoa farm! A highlight of the trip was a visit to a local women's artisan group. These women create amazing jewellery, baskets and other crafts from seeds, plants, nuts and, yes, even garbage. The whole trip was an amazing educational experience that I'm sure none of us will ever forget!

Coffee House

Coffee House is an iconic Elmwood event hosted by the Grad Committee in early November of each year. Traditionally, it features performances from both talented Elmwood students as well as outside entertainment. However, this year, our Grad Committee decided to go a slightly different route and transformed the event into a quasi-slumber party movie night while still featuring performances from students at regular intermissions throughout the night. It was a wonderful, relaxing night, filled with delicious food and camaraderie, stellar musical numbers, poetry readings and other artistic works presented by students from our graduating class, and of course an iconic movie - The Princess Bride. If this doesn't sound fun to you, well that's simply inconceivable!

Elise Lehman, Chair of Grad Committee

Each year, the International Culture's Club creates an enjoyable, fun, cultural evening. This year, our theme was the Centennial. We produced great videos, honouring centenarians and had a spectacular fashion show with more than 42 students representing different countries! Finally, the cultural performances were the highlight of the evening. Thank you to the Junior School, the Classics Club and our international students from China for their participation, and last but not least, our guest artists The Rodina Group with their Bulgarian Folk Dance.

Leane Gaussorgues
Grade 10 Student

Holiday Madness

Every year, on the last day of school before winter break, middle and senior school students and staff participate in Holiday Madness. For the whole day, the entire school is engulfed in the craziness of door decorating and scavenger hunts. Students run around the halls, holiday decorations fly everywhere, and a competition for the title of "most festive" ensues. It has been a tradition at Elmwood for many years and is a fun activity for every participant. The excitement and anticipation surrounding the event returns from year to year.

Head Girl

Father Daughter Dinner Dance

This year, the annual Elmwood Father Daughter Gala was held at the Canadian Aviation and Space Museum. The students on the Father Daughter Gala Event Committee along with the Parent Association volunteers worked very hard to plan and create this spectacular evening. This event celebrated the strong and close relationship that Elmwood girls cherish with their fathers, as well as the important and impactful roles our fathers hold within our lives. As it is Elmwood's Centennial, the Committee wanted to go an extra step to make this night even more memorable. For the first time ever, the event was opened up to Grade 4 and 5 students. The theme of the night was "Flights of Fancy", making the Canadian Aviation and Space Museum the ideal location. As daughters and fathers in gowns and tuxedos strolled by the displays of beautiful planes, the night reached a level of elegance and beauty that made for a very memorable evening. As the night progressed, girls and their fathers got to socialize with their friends while looking stunning in their gorgeous dresses. There were some fun activities as well as guest speakers during dinner, which was then followed by the DJ and an open dance floor until midnight. Near the end of the night, the girls were presented with beautiful silver bracelets with a charm to represent and commemorate the wonderful night at the Father Daughter Gala. Overall, the 2016 Elmwood Father Daughter Gala was a huge success in which daughters and fathers will remember as a night of bonding and celebration of their relationships with one another.

Junior School Musicals

The Junior School delighted us once again with an eclectic offering of musical theatre this year. In February, we were transported to the palace of the Chinese emperor for the Grades 4/5 version of The Nightingale, with its engaging theme about authentic versus artificial music. In April, the stage became a construction site, as the SK and Grade 1 classes busily practised building and demolishing their straw, stick and brick houses in preparation for The Three Little Pigs (We are happy to report that no animals were hurt during the staging of this play). The month of May brought swaggering pirates and feisty mermaids onto the stage, for the swashbuckling Grades 2/3 musical Pirates versus Mermaids. Can you guess who won? As in previous years, there was lots of gluing, painting, sewing and building involved, much of it by our very own Junior School Backstage Club! Thanks go to Mrs. Brownlie (our amazing pianist/fiddler), as well as to the many other teachers and parents who assisted with these exciting musical adventures.

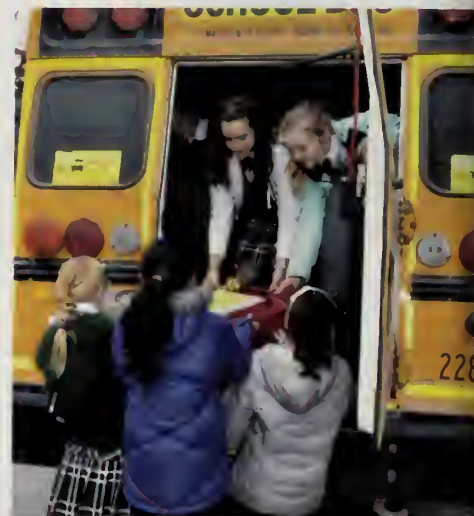

Mrs. Evelyn Pike, Director

The Middle School Production cast and crew worked hard preparing for this year's production; we are really excited to be presenting Edward Mast's Junglebook, a theatrical adaptation of Rudyard Kipling's stories about Mowgli, the human boy, raised by wolves in the jungle. Though he is surrounded by danger, he is loyally protected by his animal friends, and as such, he grows to believe that the jungle is his safe place, where he plays and rules as king. But soon enough, Mowgli will have to learn the true ways of the jungle; the animal world may not be quite as friendly as Mowgli had believed.

What a phenomenal cast and crew this year! The girls have worked tirelessly, and with the kind of maturity that is beyond their years. They have proven to be, not only talented, but kind, thoughtful and collaborative artists. I am so very proud of our girls and the show we have made together.

Many Thanks, Ms. Natasha Josselyn, Director

Les Belles Soeurs

In the year that marks Elmwood's centennial celebration, it seemed very appropriate to choose for production, a Canadian play that has proven to be a wide influence since its world premiere in 1968. Each decade, over the last 100 years, is important for one reason or another but there remains something extraordinary about the sixties in terms of political, social and cultural developments. For example: Expo 67 served as a focal point for Canada's centennial celebrations and turned Montreal, the host city, into a place that attracted world attention; after much debate, the new flag of Canada was adopted; and Québec's Quiet Revolution marked socio-political and cultural change in this Canadian province.

It is this last point that brings us to the play, Les Belles Soeurs. Michel Tremblay was inspired to write it in his early twenties (his first play, as it so happens) based upon his experiences growing up in Plateau Mont-Royal, a working-class neighbourhood of Montreal. The production elicited enormous controversy, as hitherto Québec audiences had only witnessed the works of religious and morality plays, as well as classical writers including Molière; that the joul dialect, a boisterous and salty speech spoken by the working class characters of his childhood, should make its way to the stage, alongside some of the hard issues that challenged conventional mores in Québec, was shockingly original. Since this difficult beginning, the play has gone on to become an international success; hardly a day goes by that it is not performed somewhere in the world. Last summer, while Elmwood Theatre was performing in Edinburgh, it was brought to our attention that Michel Tremblay is considered one of Scotland's honorary playwrights, so popular is his The Guid Sisters, the Glaswegian version of the same play. I also remember clearly, as a young theatre student in Toronto in the mid-seventies, becoming very aware of a new dynamic of Canadian playwrights - Michel Tremblay, James Reaney, David French and David Freeman - whose work at the Tarragon

Theatre, under the direction of Bill Glassco, was given an opportunity for creation and development. Coming out of the 1960s, this group of prolific playwrights marked an exciting new direction in Canadian theatre.

Elmwood Theatre performed this same play ten years ago, so the choice to mount it again is rather like an 'anniversary'. This is not an easy play to master; the text is fast and furious and farcical, but on both occasions the choice to mount it was owing to the extraordinary talent of the students who could clearly carry a work of this complexity. A classic, the play invites audiences to both laugh and cry - over the antics of the characters and the tragicomedy in which they find themselves.

Ms. Angela Boychuk, Director of Elmwood Theatre

Spirit Afternoon

This year, I had the pleasure of coordinating the 2016 Spirit Afternoon. As Senior Prefect, I worked with the Senior School House Council throughout the whole year to plan this annual event. Through bonding and teamwork, the girls and I were able to execute an exciting afternoon for the rest of the Junior, Middle and Senior Schools. Spirit Afternoon is an opportunity for the four houses, Fry, Wilson, Keller, and Nightingale, to engage in friendly competition through a series of water games and obstacle courses. Like every year, the Grade 12s exhibited exceptional leadership skills, collaborating exceptionally well by running the stations at the Governor General's. The Grade 11s also played a key role in the success of the event, leading groups of younger students with cheer and spirit.

We are proud to be the Fantastic Fives Generation! We all enjoyed every bit of this year, especially Exhibition. The teachers made it a million times more interesting than it seemed. In September we went to Y-Camp, where we got to work together to solve challenges and explore our natural environment in interesting and fun ways. We also got to participate in an amazing musical called "The Nightingale". To end our amazing year, the Grade Five class went to the Supreme Court of Canada. We even got to participate in a mock trial and sentence one of our classmates to two years in prison! After the mock trial we were taken to the Main Court. We got to meet the honourable Madame Rosalie Abella. This year has been an exceptional year for the Fantastic Fives. We hope next years class will have such a great time in Grade Five, just like we did.

Middle School

This year The Middle School has accomplished a number of different things, won multiple awards and so much more; there is really no end to the list of Middle School achievements this year. For example, several of the Grade Seven students were invited to attend the Regional Science Fair at Carleton University, and won multiple awards. Additionally, all of Middle School was able to attend the National Band Festival held at Algonquin College. Being in Middle School means having more opportunities in terms of being a leader or being more independent.

Senior School

This year has been pretty normal for the Senior School except for the fact that this year is the centennial. We have had the new uniform, courtesy of the centennial, for the entire year now. We had some major accomplishments for the Senior School including three golds for the senior concert band, exceptional reviews of Elmwood Theatre's Les Belles Soeurs, and numerous sporting accomplishments. The Senior School has become a community to most of us. We are there for people when they are successful and when they fall. Overall, I am very proud of the Senior School.

Graduates

Sophie Barnes

Thank you to my family and friends for supporting me throughout high school, especially to my parents who have always been there for me. What better way to end this than with a quote:

"You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself any direction you choose. You're on your own. And you know what you know. And YOU are the one who'll decide where to go..."

Dr. Seuss, Oh, The Places You'll Go!

Vicky Bolitho

After 7 years, it's a bit hard to imagine being anywhere else, but just like the mammals after the death of the dinosaurs, we'll carrion.

I leave you with a quote:

"The question isn't who is going to let me; it's who is going to stop me."

Ayn Rand

Celia Chen

Hannah Dolhai

My time at Elmwood has been one of learning and personal growth. The friendships I have made here have helped shape me into the person I am. To everyone who has supported me throughout my time here, I am truly grateful. To my parents, thank you for teaching me that my best is good enough and that mistakes are not failures but rewards within themselves. Thank you to my sister, who has inspired me to find peace and confidence with every ounce of myself. Lastly, to my best friends who have held my hand in hard times and let me walk in front in times of success, thank you. Elmwood has taught me not to fear the future but embrace it, and for that I am appreciative.

Quinn Fincham

Made it!

Asmait Fukur

I first came to Elmwood in 2015, and even though the school was different from all the other schools where I had been, it had everything I needed to be successful. Most importantly, I want to thank certain people in my life that helped me accomplish my triumph today. I want to thank God, my parents, siblings, friends and my cat Belmont.

Brianna Gongga-Cavé

One thing I can say for sure is that this was nothing like High School Musical. While there was no Troy Bolton, we still survived. I just wanted to congratulate the Class of 2016 and wish everyone good luck for what comes ahead in the future. I know one thing I will be looking forward to is wearing nail polish without getting a conduct warning!

To my crew out there - Sikemi, Sreenija, Tessa, and Gen - I am going to miss you girls so much. You have made the last three years of high school such a blast and you are the best group of friends I could ever ask for. I love you all and I can't wait for what awaits us after high school.

Finally, I want to say a huge thanks to my family, especially to my mom who has been so supportive of me throughout my entire journey. You are my role model and I hope I can grow up to be half the woman you are.

Quick shout out to Drake and Beyoncé for being the bomb:
"Started from the bottom now we're here".

Aubrey Graham

Koyuki Hayashi

Thank you to my parents and my family for their unconditional love and support and for giving me the chance to pursue my dream to specialize in Cinema. I enjoyed meeting everyone and I wish you the best.

To all my peers and the grads of 2016: Congratulations. Until our roads cross again and I can thank the academy for my Oscar... Cheers.

Rabeya Khan

I am grateful for having the opportunity to graduate from Elmwood. Special thanks to my teachers and classmates for making my first and last year at Elmwood memorable.

Sreenija Koya

My high school experience began four years ago, when I entered Elmwood in Grade 9. Having come full circle as a high school graduate, that ninth-grader and I are different in nearly every sense of the word. Yet, throughout all this so-called 'personal growth', I still feel just as unsure of the world now as I did back then. So if you really want to hear about it, I would say that it's been an incredibly confusing process, to suddenly be presented with all these different choices and possibilities for what comes next. Although, the good thing about all this is that I've been fortunate enough to find people who feel the same way. To my friends, the graduating Class of 2016, I am glad that my last year of high school was spent with all of you. I am especially thankful to my family, for always having faith in me; and to my teachers, you have truly taught me more than just academics, and I am grateful for all of your guidance. Finally, to move away from my words, as T.S. Eliot wrote, "To make an end is to make a beginning. The end is where we start from."

Genevieve Laberge

"No one expected me. Everything awaited me." -Patti Smith, Just Kids

I am very fortunate to have developed some strong and positive friendships during my time at Elmwood. At the moment, I am extremely excited to embark on a new stage of life; however, part of me knows that I will always miss my Elmwood memories.

Graduation still doesn't feel real to me yet; it's something you prepare yourself for during the university application process but forget by the time you reach your departure. After attending Elmwood for the past 9 years, it will be a strange experience to be surrounded by entirely unknown faces in a place so foreign to me, but I know that the friends I have made, and my family of course, will always be no more than a call, train, or flight away.

Elise Lehman

And sometimes remembering will lead to a story, which makes it forever.

That's what stories are for. Stories are for joining the past to the future. Stories are for those late hours in the night when you can't remember how you got from where you were to where you are. Stories are for eternities, when memory is erased, when there is nothing to remember except the story."

-Tim O'Brien, The Things They Carried

Mavis Ma

Brooke Mierins

70,560,000. It is a huge number and the approximate number of seconds I have spent within the walls of Elmwood. I have sat in almost every chair, use every printer about a thousand times, and walked down every hall more times than I can count. Yet, everyday I passed through the doors knowing that day would be different. I would be learning, trying or doing something new. I would be seeing my friends, who have been there through thick and thin. I cannot thank everyone enough for the laughs and good times. My teachers have provided more help and support than I could have ever expected. Over these past years I have learned so much, all of which I will take with me everywhere I go. Most of all, I would like to thank my family for dealing with my antics. Thanks for investing in my future. By no definition of the word has Elmwood been 'easy', but I know I have gotten an amazing education and overall experience. Parting ways is always difficult, but everything I have learned will stay with me in one form or another for the rest of my life.

Aiyanna Morris

Laura Morrison

"I suppose it will all make sense when we grow up."

As I leave high school behind and move on to my college career, I want to look to my favourite philosophic duo, the 6-year-old Calvin and his ol' buddy Hobbes.

Calvin: "You can't just turn on creativity like a faucet. You have to be in the right mood."

Hobbes: "What mood is that?"

Calvin: "Last-minute panic."

To my mom and dad: Thank you for putting up with me like Calvin's mom does for him, showing me that I can be whatever I want, and teaching me the importance of hard work coupled with a child-like enthusiasm.

To Andrew and Sarah: Thank you for being my role models, my homework answers, my biggest fans, and, most importantly, thank you for being my own two Hobbes and showing me that things are never quite as scary when you've got a best friend.

Sikemi Oni

"Uh, I'm tryna learn something new. I'm tryna find myself, I'm searching deep for Kendrick Lamar."

Kendrick Lamar, Cut You Off (To Grow Closer)

I just had to include a Kendrick quote, even though it has little to do with this.

I want to thank my teachers and friends for the past 3 years at Elmwood. When I first arrived at Elmwood, I saw it as a stepping stone to university but I soon realized it was more than that. I have learned a lot and matured - for the most part (I am still always late). On the whole, I think I am ready to embark on the next phase of my life and like Kendrick said search deep for Sikemi.

Dania Rida

My father always says, "the harder you work, the luckier you'll get". Throughout my past five years at Elmwood, I have lived strongly by this motto with hard work and dedication: I have seen myself gain priceless values and morals. This school has changed my life in ways unimaginable: I came from a small public school in the eighth grade with little direction and aspiration. During my Elmwood experience, I have learned so much, and been through many successes and failures, all of which have shaped me into the person I have become today. I have seen my friends blossom, succeed and gain passion, and my classmates persevere and excel. I would like to thank my family for all of their support; as cliché as it sounds, I truly could not have done it without you. Thank you especially to my mother, who helped me through all of the stress and pain, to show me that effort and commitment is a reward in itself. Also, thank you to my father, who never failed to assist me when I needed help, and stood by my side through everything. I couldn't be more proud of my classmates and me. To the class of 2016: good luck in the future; I wish you all the best.

Fumi Shibutani

"We are the makers of music and the dreamers of dreams"
- Willy Wonka

As the exposition of life's sonata comes to a close, it is time to begin composing the next section. To my parents, thank you for listening to my midnight woes, for being moral support when I needed you and for keeping the fridge full.

To my teachers, thank you for teaching me with passion and enthusiasm, and for instilling life lessons along the way. To the staff, thank you for helping make life at Elmwood smooth and full of friendly faces.

Finally to the Class of 2016, Congratulations! We've all made it! I'll miss the sound of laughter coming from the common room, the feeling of elation when receiving university acceptances and the hugs and tears we have all shared. Our conversations have been music to my ears, our dreams have shot straight to the stars and still we continue to be dreamers, aspiring to be the best we can be. Grads, we did it!

Safa Siddiqui

"Don't bend; don't water it down; don't try to make it logical; don't edit your own soul according to the fashion. Rather, follow your most intense obsessions mercilessly."

- Franz Kafka

Meera Singla

Looking back at my years at Elmwood, I have learned a lot about myself and have grown as a person. These past years have been so memorable and I will never forget the memories I have made at this school. To my mom and dad, I will always be thankful for your endless love and support. To my sister, thank you for all the late pickups, fast-food runs, and words of motivation. I truly don't know what I would do without you. To my best friends whom I've cried and laughed with, thank you for catching me every time I fell. To the Class of 2016, congratulations! I know you all will go on to accomplish amazing things in your life!

Megan Sweeney

I genuinely never expected to do half of the things I have done here, and I mean that in the best possible way. In my 7 years at Elmwood, I have attended countless classes; yet I suppose the lesson I have most internalized is that of the unexpected. In ways, it's a remarkable and almost reassuring notion: the nondescript 'unknown' could be either good or bad. As this next stage of my life approaches, I know that whatever course it may take, Elmwood has provided me with a base understanding of the world in which we live, and I will face any unforeseen challenges with the confidence I have gained through my time and development here.

To my parents, sister, and dog, I will never be able to express how grateful I am for everything you have done for me. To every teacher I've ever had, thank you for getting me to where I am today. Finally, to the Class of 2016: every one of you has inspired me in ways beyond measure. I greatly admire you all as friends, leaders, and individuals on the whole, and sincerely wish you every happiness and success in all your future endeavours.

Samantha Thompson-Spence

As a graduate, I can finally say that I'm getting my diploma. I've waited so long for it, worked so hard, shed so many tears; 12 years in Azkaban I waited, but the time is finally here.

During my time at Elmwood, I have successfully found every possible hiding place in the school and used most of them, performed a puppet show as a final project, dyed my hair blue, left anonymous sacks of candy outside classrooms, had an overdue assignment in almost every class I've ever had, nearly broken a window at camp with a frisbee, spent an entire day walking in paint with a friend for an art piece we never actually used, received a 4% on a first test and passed the course, and had my class play "WWI capture the flag" in the pouring rain, among other things.

I'm incredibly proud of the time I've spent here, and I can't imagine having been anywhere else. I've had the opportunity to have friendships grow and evolve, to spend every school day earning from absolutely exceptional teachers, and now have a strangely emotional connection to hunter green. To everyone I've met at Elmwood, you really have changed my life, and I wouldn't have it any other way.

Zamzam Turki

"The one who follows the crowd will usually get no further than the crowd. The one who walks alone, is likely to find himself in places no one has ever been."
Albert Einstein

High school is all about discovering who you are and during my time in Elmwood, I found myself. Thank you for a great experience.

Tessa van Haastrecht

I have spent my entire life wishing for things. Wishing to be older, wishing to be prettier and wishing to be taller. Wishing to finish high school quicker and wishing to be somewhere else altogether. Wishing to forget the sad moments and wishing I held onto the happier ones for longer. I was so caught up in wanting to be perfect that I lost sight of what mattered most. I lost all those years by wishing it away instead of enjoying the journey. However, I am happy with how things turned out and as I begin a new chapter in my life, I have committed myself to stop wishing and instead start doing.

Markley Wakeland

It has been an interesting time here at Elmwood. I recently read something that Eleanor Roosevelt said: "People grow through experience if they meet life honestly and courageously. This is how character is built."

Different moments and experiences, though they may not be defining, shape us into the people we want to be and those who we want to become. Thinking back, I realized that my high school experience has been challenging and eye opening. However, because of this, I know that I will be able to handle any other challenges that I may face in life. I would especially like to thank my parents for their unwavering support throughout not only the many trials and tribulations but also during the happy and memorable moments, which I will always remember.

Yilin Wang

"I never said the vector fields were rational functions."
A Beautiful Mind

Well, your next decision might be the one that changes your life completely. You'll never know. This insanely incredible Elmwood story started back in Grade 10, and it was September 2013 that marked the beginning of some best years of my life. I am lucky to have had the most amazing people along the way: my host family (Elizabeth, Jess, Kelly, and Sam), with whom I spent two memorable years; my lovely friends, who have borne with my randomness and various oddities; my teachers, who have given me encouragement when things got tough and inspired me to be the learner and the person I otherwise would never have become; and most of all, my mom and dad, who have always been the most important and inspirational people in my life. You are all my reasons.

Ziling Wang

Elmwood is my home in a foreign country. I have been here for just two years, but all my friends and my whole life revolve around Elmwood School. I first started to adhere to foreign culture, a totally different school system, and a lifestyle that I have now experienced. Camp Elmwood, in Grade 11, was the first opportunity for me to get to know these friends that I have now. I am thankful that my schoolmates and friends in my cabin helped me to blend into the big school family. In the following two school years, the clubs and sports I joined opened my mind, taught and gave me more opportunities to enjoy school life. Life at Elmwood has a special meaning for me; it is my first warm home in a foreign surrounding. Time passes fast, the first orientation day seems like it happened yesterday, and I cannot believe - I do not want to believe - that graduation is coming.

Thanks Elmwood. Thanks, every "you".

Emily Wright

"Luck favours the prepared"
Edna Mode

So thank you to everyone who helped prepare us for our future. I know that each and every one of us has the ability to do something great with our lives. So good luck ladies with your next phase of life. I know we'll achieve great things.

Cecille Wu

Coming to Elmwood is like flipping a new page in my life. Every day when I walk into the scenes that I see, they become so imprinted on my mind that it's hard to believe that I will be leaving shortly and starting a new chapter in my life. Every morning, the noisy corridors and the warm welcoming greetings will soon become a sweet memory. The fun classes and joyful classmates will soon fade, and all of the grads will then walk slowly into their future. Everything seems to have come too suddenly, but then again too slowly. Ever since the start of the year we have known that graduation would be coming, but it never seemed so soon. Right now, there is too much that I want to say, but not many words to describe what I feel every day walking in and seeing these scenes to which I have adjusted. These are memories that I will take on throughout my life, and I deeply believe that coming here has made my life different.

Short Poems for Busy People

A Poem

This is not a poem. Definitely not.
Sorry.

Surrealism

Look at my argument. Isn't it nice? All laid out for you.
Alas! The tide of reason has swept it away.
It left a crab. Poor crab. Poor metaphor.

Art

Don't laugh, you cretin.
This is art.

A Treatise on the State of Modern Political Rhetoric
Oops.

Purpose

Small, rotund.
Echolocation.
Fish, Squid. Yum.
Shallow coastal waters.
Marine ma

Oh . . . purpose.

The Point

What is the point?

Anybody?

Darn.

Life, Death, and Stories

I was in a car. Traffic happened. The car slowed and I gazed mindlessly. Some enterprising soul had planted grass; a lush green slit cut into the four lanes. The asphalt had ruptured, allowing nature to breathe. It was token grass. It was beautiful, long, verdant, yet singularly isolated. It lay, a non-sequitur, bound by two gleaming walls of rushing metal bodies, seen but never observed, maintained but never touched. It was so abundantly natural, yet it was just as much a part of the constructed world as the concrete, the asphalt and the cars.

This is symbolism. Some innocent, objectively undifferentiated thing is yanked from reality and mercilessly intellectualized. A poetic structure is superimposed on the physical world. When the intellectual is in harmony with the physical, and like in a masterful painting, there is contrast, vibrancy, mystery and balance; ideas become art. Beauty is constructed.

Our life is an intellectual construct. We call it a journey. We insert ourselves in a grand metanarrative and embellish it with scintillating points of narrative flair because this maintains the illusion of purpose. We fear chaos, because without order we are victims of chance, just minuscule anomalies, clinging to a rock, hurtling through space. So, we manufacture structure, in the form of narratives. Stories, metaphors and symbolism are innate.

We want justice, we want resolution; we want to construct long and pedantic phrases that tow the soul from a beginning to an end. We need to believe that the end of our life is an end in the narrative sense: a resolution, a neat convergence of all meaning on one final, momentous transition from sentience to oblivion. From the individual perspective, when we die, the universe ends. This is no small occurrence. There must be resolution.

We cherish historical narratives. We satisfy ourselves that we are part of a grander story, with a more significant plot. Our sanity is dependent on this illusion. We accrete paper shells photographs, journals, writings, drawings, mementoes so that even as we rot, a monument to our life lives, to cast a shadow forwards in time.

We write to imitate life and live to imitate writing. We imagine ourselves as protagonists, traversing the narrative arc, imposing poetic order on fundamental chaos. Fantasy is imperative; it defines the nebulous, chaotic, temporal space between birth and death. Narratives make life worth living.

much claim to being a horseman, but if he couldn't ride a long-horned Texas steer that went on wheels he'd resign his job.

He took it out into the open, away from the immediate danger of a collision with a tree, and squared himself to break it in. He got it going at last, cheered by loud whoops of admiration and encouragement, and rode it straight into the fire. He scattered sticks and coals and bore a wabbling horse ahead, his friends after him, shouting and waving hats. Somewhere in the dark beyond the lanterns he ran into a tree.

But he came back pushing the machine, his nose skinned, sweating and triumphant, offering to pay for any damage he had done. Lambert assured him there was no damage. They sat down to smoke again, all of them feeling better, the barrier against the stranger quite down, everything comfortable and serene.

Lambert told them, in reply to kindly, polite questioning from the elder of the bunch, a man designated by the name Siwash, how he was lately graduated from the Kansas Agricultural College at Manhattan, and how he had taken the road with a grip full of hardware to get enough

Grade 6 Concert Band

Grade 7 Concert Band

The Centennial year marked a milestone for Elmwood's music program. The school received four invitations to MusicFest Canada, awarding Elmwood the Capital Region MusicFest "Most Outstanding Band Trophy" and excellent results at the national level.

Being a representative of our musicians, I know that a great deal of dedication made this incredible feat possible. I am especially proud of our Middle School Concert Bands for playing with maturity and musicianship. The ensembles were comprised of girls with varying musical abilities and even those who had never taken up an instrument prior to this. Nonetheless, the girls understood the importance of teamwork and communication in an ensemble environment. Under the direction of Mr. Gummeson, they awed their audiences with their collaboration and mastered technique.

Grade 8 Concert Band

Our Senior Concert Band's gold recognition was also a heartfelt one. Every member of the band remained conscious of phrasing, which was key in making a performance laden with expression. I commend Grade 6 students Sophia Moloo and Madighan Ryan for their improvement this year. Both girls began playing their instruments in September, and their commitment has been phenomenal. Thank you to all band members for investing your efforts in this ensemble - your dedication has come to fruition!

Senior Concert Band

Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank Mr. Gummeson. Mr. G, your teaching style and positive attitude have had a lasting impact on my outlook on music, and I know I speak for many others. We could not have asked for a better instructor and we wish you the best with the arrival of your baby girl!

I will end with a Latin aphorism, "Ars Longa Vita Brevis": "art is long, life is short". So, I encourage you to pursue whatever art form you desire and to cherish it in the time we have.
